

Small Group of Senators Battle to Back Truman's Veto of Communist Bill

Senator Langer Stricken and Is Taken to Naval Hospital; Talkfest Is Interrupted
Veto Message
Truman Says Measure Would Make Mockery of Bill of Rights

By JOHN CHADWICK
Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—A small group of senators carried on their uphill battle this morning to uphold President Truman's veto of a controversial Communist control bill, undeterred by the collapse of one of their number on the floor.

Senator Langer (R-N.D.) sagged to the floor, gasping for breath, and was taken to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md. This brought a dramatic interruption to the all-night talkathon he and a handful of his colleagues were waging against the bill.

They had little or no hope of succeeding, despite the strong tenor of Mr. Truman's veto. He had used such words as "hysterical," "hasty and ill-considered" and had said the measure would make "a mockery of the Bill of Rights."

Mr. Truman's own Senate lieutenant, Floor Leader Lucas of Illinois, told his colleagues he would vote to override the veto. Lucas had voted for the bill when it passed the Senate originally.

Langer, who will be 64 on September 30, was carried from the Senate chamber on a stretcher after his collapse.

Naval Hospital officials said later Senator Langer's condition didn't seem to be critical, but no diagnosis had been made. A public information officer said he didn't believe the senator had suffered a heart attack, but appeared to be exhausted. He said the senator was unconscious.

Langer had started speaking at 10:50 p. m. E.S.T. last night and collapsed, ashen-faced, at 4:18 a. m., almost five and a half hours later.

Supporters of the bill had been sitting back determined to let their opponents talk themselves out. They were confident they had the votes to write the measure into law over the veto.

The House had already overridden Mr. Truman's objections, swiftly yesterday afternoon by a 288 to 48 vote. That was 63 votes more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

Adjournment Threatened

The all-night talkfest threatened to throw a wrench into Congress plans to adjourn sometime today until November 27, after the elections.

The Senate, on Lucas' motion, reconsidered its earlier adoption of a resolution providing for a recess today. The effect was to nullify the previous approval of the resolution, but the Senate can adopt it again later.

Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) then proposed a Senate recess until 1 p. m. E.S.T., with an agreement to vote on the bill at 4 p. m. E.S.T. But Senator McCarran (Continued on Page 10, Col. 6)

Soviet Policy Due For More Censure
Netherlands and Chile to Take Floor in Special Session

By A. I. GOLDBERG
New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The general assembly resumes its full sessions today with continuing debates critical of Soviet policy.

The Netherlands, Chile and Belgium are on the speaker's list for the single Saturday session. All of them have spoken bitterly in the past of one or more phases of Soviet actions.

China's Tsiang Kai-shek, fighting to keep the Nationalist Chinese delegation seated in the U.N. against Russian-supported attempts to displace them with the Chinese Communists, was also originally listed to speak today, but a delegation spokesman said last night Tsiang has decided to postpone his statement until Monday.

The assembly resumes its policy debates after a one-day holiday Friday taken at Egypt's request in deference to Moslem delegates observing a religious festival.

The Netherlands and Chile both have said billing things in past assembly sessions about human rights and their observance in countries under Soviet control. The Netherlands Foreign Minister D. U. Stikker was first on today's speaking list.

Tsiang's accusations that Soviet Russia has sabotaged peace throughout the Far East are expected to bring a sharp step-up next week of anti-Russian policy statements forcefully voiced in opening speeches by the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Brazil and Peru.

Will Help Rearm U. S. and Its Friends; Bill Practically Same Truman Favored

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—A $17,000,000,000 emergency money bill to help meet costs of rearming this nation and its friends was on President Truman's desk today in practically the same form he had favored. It was one of the last enactments of the vacation-bound Congress.

Slipped off a tight ban on economic aid to foreign countries trading in military goods with the Soviet bloc, it boosts to approximately $60,000,000,000 the cash and contract authority voted since the first of this year.

And it raises to more than $100,000,000,000 the cash and contract authority, including national debt interest payments and other fixed costs, running to about $8,000,000,000 a year, voted since the 81st Congress convened in January, 1949.

The emergency defense bill was cleared yesterday after a brief but hot Senate fight over an amendment that would have denied U. S. economic help to any nation whose trade with Russia or her satellites includes arms, munitions or any article that could be used for military purposes.

Mr. Truman personally had attacked the amendment as one which he said would hurt free (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

No Apology

Impellitteri Will Not Apologize for Remarks by Gov. Dewey

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Acting Mayor Vincent Impellitteri says he will not apologize in the name of New York city for remarks by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey which led to Soviet delegates walking out.

The city was host Thursday night at the dinner for United Nations delegates.

Dewey accused the Soviet Union of keeping 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 people "in slave labor."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, chief U.N. delegate, Jacob Malik and Soviet aides strode off the dais and left the room without a word.

Impellitteri said U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie asked him to apologize in the name of the city.

"I told Mr. Lie that it was not my right nor my power to censor anything that the governor of New York may wish to say," said the acting mayor.

A U.N. spokesman was vague about Lie's having asked for an apology but there was no denial that such a request had been made.

Later, U.N. officials said no steps were being taken to ask for a formal apology. So far as the city is concerned, Impellitteri said, the incident is closed.

Local Banks Under $10,000 Insurance Plan

President Truman has signed a bill doubling the maximum deposits protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. from $5,000 to $10,000.

The insurance covers 15,000 F.D.I.C. member banks and 14,000 insured institutions, holding more than $300 billion in deposits.

In addition, the new law establishes a "dividend credits" system which is expected to cut the cost of insurance to member banks. It also gives the F.D.I.C. blanket authority to send its own examiners into any covered national or state bank believed to be in difficulty.

The measure applies to all commercial and savings banks in Kingston.

Your First Pay Envelope in October Will Feel Income Tax Increase

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent
Washington (NEA)—John Q. Taxpayer will feel the effect of the new increase in income taxes in his first pay envelope in October.

Generally, it will be a 20 per cent bigger bite, which results from the three per cent increase in the withholding rate.

For example, a married man with no children who makes $75 a week will have $8.90 deducted for taxes under the new rate, an increase of $1.50 a week. A married man with two children earning $350 a month will have $22.60 deducted, an increase of $2.60.

Ninety-five per cent of the people will have the increased tax handled for them automatically as increased payroll reductions.

The other five per cent, farmers, business men, those self-employed and anyone who has filed a declaration of estimated tax for 1950 can continue to pay the quarterly amounts due under the old rate or they can file an amended declaration based on the new rate, before Jan. 15, 1951.

If they don't raise their quarterly payments they will have to settle up on the extra 1950 tax by March 15.

Those who filed reasonably accurate estimates of 1950 tax need not file an amended estimate. If you underestimated your 1950 tax by 20 per cent or more, however, you should file an amended declaration by Jan. 15 to insure against a penalty.

Actually, the taxes for all of 1950 will be increased about five per cent. But in order to collect that in the last three months of the year, the withholding goes up about 20 per cent.

The 1951 tax is actually about 20 per cent more than the tax was before the present increase. That means that the deductions starting in 1951 will be exactly the same as the ones which were started in October. This juggling of rates was done merely to make it easier for the Bureau to collect the taxes.

It makes the tax no more complicated for the taxpayer to compute when he files his return. In other words the juggling eliminates making two computations to take into account two rates.

Military personnel in Korea get a tax break under the new law. GIs are now freed of any tax on income they earned or will earn while on duty in any combat zone. Officers get an exemption of $200 for each month in a combat zone. Both of these provisions are retroactive to the start of the Korean fight.

As far as the ordinary taxpayer goes there are the only changes they will see. Some loopholes in the old law have been plugged at the request of the President. But they have little effect on the average citizen. For example, former tax-free institutions such as universities will now have to pay a tax on profitable unrelated businesses.

In addition to individual tax increases the new bill provides substantial increases in corporate taxes. The Bureau of Internal Revenue will not begin collecting this money until next year, but it is effective as of July 1, 1950.

Daylight Time Ends Tomorrow; Set Clocks Back

Residents losing that one hour of sleep last April when "summer time" went into effect, will gain that 60 minutes tonight when clocks are turned back.

Daylight Saving Time actually bows out at 2 a. m. but most people in the D.S.T. zone will set their clocks back an hour upon retiring tonight.

Summer, meanwhile, officially bowed out of the picture today at 9:44 a. m. and left a pleasant day for the start of the autumn season. The autumnal equinox, which occurred at 9:44 a. m., is the time when the equator crosses the sun's center on the earth's southward swing, and day and night are equal length.

New railroad timetables will go into effect Sunday with schedules reverting to Eastern Standard Time.

Summer time has been observed this year by 50,000,000 Americans, particularly in the industrial east and in a majority of the nation's large cities. Ninety million citizens, mostly in the rural sections of the south, mid-west and far west, have not observed the time.

Nobel Winner Pays Tribute to Others

Dr. Ralph Bunche Receives Peace Prize With 'Deep Humility'

Lake Success, Sept. 23 (AP)—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for 1950, said today he received the news with "deep humility."

Busy at his tasks as principal director in the trusteeship division here, Bunche said "I more than anyone recognize the extent to which my peace efforts in the Near East flowed from the strength of the United Nations."

He paid tribute to his predecessor, Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, for laying the essential foundations of the Palestine armistice agreements. He called Bernadotte "the great and courageous man who gave his life in the determined effort to bring peace to Palestine."

Bunche, the first American Negro to receive the award, also praised the support of Trygve Lie, U.N. secretary general. Adding "in a very real sense, the task performed in Palestine was a cooperative achievement, carried out by a highly competent team of more than 700 military observers and international civil servants of many nationalities."

Mostafa Shalwit, Israeli minister of foreign affairs here for the assembly, called the award a "fitting tribute to a great servant of the United Nations," adding "it gives renewed strength to faith in its cause."

Dim Invasion Prospects

Taipei, Formosa, Sept. 23 (AP)—Monsoon winds began blowing across 100-mile wide Formosa Strait today. They lessened prospects of any Chinese Red invasion of this Nationalist island this year. Chinese Nationalist defense officials said the steady 12 to 16 miles-an-hour winds which will increase in velocity—make an invasion attempt "practically impossible" unless the Russians supply the Reds with an armada of modern craft.

Says Situation Serious

Moscow, Sept. 23 (AP)—A Pravda correspondent reported from Korea today that the "situation is very serious in Seoul." He said brigades of workers are using "cement, streetcar rails, beams and stones" to build barricades in the threatened city. Writing from somewhere in Korea, a special correspondent for the Communist Party newspaper said "pillboxes and tank points dot the scene inside Seoul."

Allied Marines Forge Ahead and Tighten Clamps on Seoul

Reds Shifted From South Battle Now Defending Capital
Elements of Commie 9th Division Join Seoul Defenders; Some Are Captured

With U. S. Marines on the Seoul Front, Sept. 23 (AP)—U. S. Marine Intelligence officers said today North Korean soldiers who fought against the allies in deep south Korea now are helping to defend Seoul.

They said elements of the North Korean Ninth Division which grappled with U. S. 25th Division troops near Haman apparently joined in the defense of Seoul yesterday.

The intelligence officers said men of the Red Ninth Division already have been captured.

Three North Korean regiments, plus a "rehabilitation battalion," now are reported defending Seoul. The latter is composed of troops who had been imprisoned for desertion and other major military offenses.

The Marine officers said they expected Reds in that unit to be sacrificed even more recklessly than ordinary Communist units.

The allies today tightened their clamp on Seoul.

Moving in toward the city from the north were U. S. and South Korean Marines. They advanced to within two miles of the heart of the city.

On the southwest, U. S. Marines secured Yongdungpo, an industrial suburb of Seoul on the southwest bank of the Han river, as they inched toward the former South Korean capital.

U. S. Seventh Division Infantrymen were in firm control of Suwon and its airfield 20 miles south of Seoul.

Both ends of the two forces moving to Seoul met strong opposition. They were under fire from long-range enemy artillery.

High ground surrounding Seoul on virtually all sides is the real key, the city lies in the basin of a natural bowl.

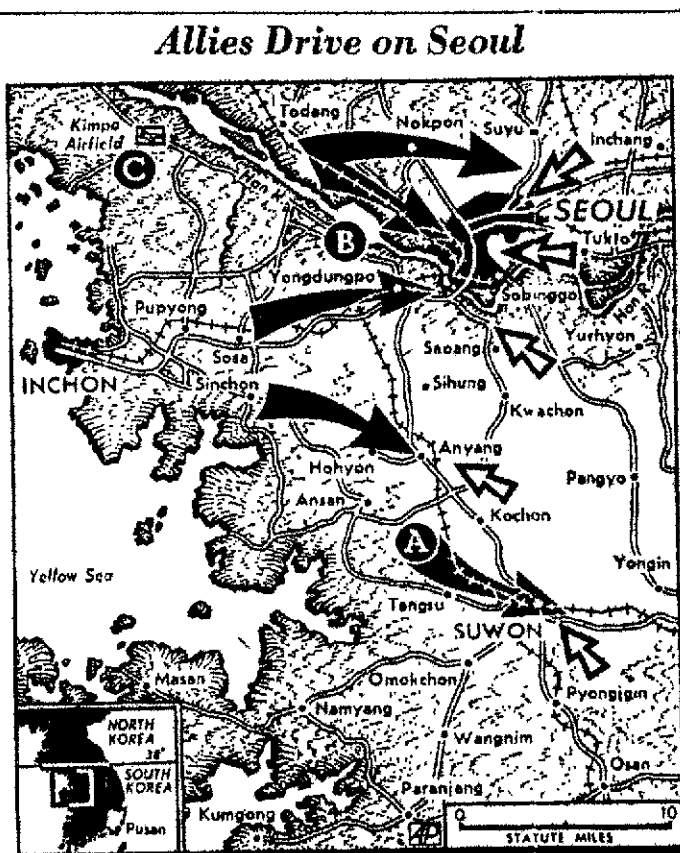

The Marines are confident that when the strategic heights are taken they will be able to clear the city rapidly and hold it, although they expect to be outnumbered.

Capt. Stone Gullian of San Antonio, Tex., a frontline officer, said report of Red disorders within Seoul are multiplying. He said such reports came from both Red prisoners and civilians.

Refugees said people were refusing to work for the Communists and were resisting conscription with the result that scores were being killed.

Long hair—usually the mark of an officer rank—is disappearing in Seoul, the refugees said. They told interrogators that North Korean soldiers are getting haircuts and are swapping their military uniforms for civilian clothes.

The number of Red prisoners captured now is well over 1,000. Another 2,000 have been killed and many wounded.

Solid black arrows locate allied drives from the Inchon beachhead against the North Korean Communists (open arrows) already massed in Seoul or attempting to reach the city from the south, Sept. 22. The U. S. Seventh Division entered Suwon (A) in a thrust to cut off those reinforcements. Two allied marine columns drove on Seoul (B) from the northwest and southwest, engaging Reds in hand-to-hand combat. At Kimpo airfield (C) allied forces fought off Communists' attacks.

By LEIF ERICKSON
Tokyo, Sept. 23 (AP)—Allied marines tightened the clamps on Seoul from two sides today but fresh Red reinforcements for the Korean capital already had arrived from the southern front.

The pinch on Seoul came as Allied forces forged their greatest gains of the war on the southeastern front.

A U. S. Marine intelligence officer said elements of the Korean Communist Ninth Division, previously fighting the U. S. 25th Division on the old United Nations beachhead near Haman, reached Seoul Friday.

The Reds evidently swept northward up the main Taejeon-Suwon-Seoul route before tanked U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen seized Suwon and its airfield Friday evening. Suwon is 20 miles south of Seoul.

Associated Press Correspondent Rehman Morin, with the marines at Seoul, reported two leatherneck columns were driving on the ancient capital of 1,000,000 from the north and southwest.

The northern prong, including South Korean marines, was in Seoul's outskirts within two miles of the heart of the sprawling city. The southwest prong took the shell-battered industrial suburb of Yongdungpo on the south bank of the Han river, and pushed on toward ruined railroad bridges.

Marine intelligence reported the Red reinforcements from the south joined three individual regiments and a "rehabilitation battalion" in defense of Seoul. The battalion, comprised entirely of soldiers previously imprisoned for military offenses, is expected to be sacrificed recklessly.

Earlier, General MacArthur announced that Allied troops had fought into Seoul's northern outskirts.

Freedom Crusade Is Formed Here
Local Groups Respond to Campaign; Second Meeting Wednesday

First steps in forming a local committee for the Crusade for Freedom effort were taken at a meeting in the mayor's office Friday night.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk has been named chairman of the local committee. Representatives from 11 local organizations were invited to attend Friday's meeting, and additional organizations will be invited to send representatives to a second meeting, scheduled for Wednesday evening.

The organizations represented so far on the committee include the Knights of Columbus, the Marine Corps League, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lions Club, Kingston High School, Chamber of Commerce, B'nai B'rith, Rotary, Kiwanis and the Moose Lodge.

Aim of the crusade is to obtain the signatures of millions of Americans on scrolls in an effort to "help lift the iron curtain everywhere." Subscriptions will be accepted toward the casting of a Liberty Bell to be placed in Berlin, Germany, and for expansion of the "Voice of America."

Hadn't Such Kindness in Her Life. She Told Hospital Attendants Who Treated Her

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—On a late, spring afternoon a year and a half ago, a shy, gray-haired little woman appeared at New York Memorial Center for Cancer and Allied Diseases.

She was in pain, suffering from an advanced, inoperable cancer of the breast.

Regularly for the next year, the 62-year-old woman, Miss Margaret Williams Pierce, called at the hospital for treatment. She dressed plainly, and apparently was of scant means.

"She gave the impression she hadn't a penny to spare," a hospital spokesman said. "So she was not asked to pay private or even semi-private charges."

This could have gone into the thousands of dollars.

Although there was no hope for curing Miss Pierce's ailment, she was treated with new hormone compounds that gave temporary relief from the great pain and swelling.

Miss Pierce worked as a telephone receptionist, and lived in a small meagerly furnished apartment on West 71st street. Several times, when her illness was worse, the hospital sent a nurse to care for her.

Frequently, she told her attendants she had "never met with such kindness in my life."

She responded well to the treatments. But as the doctors progressed, slowly sapping away, the little woman's life. Last May, she died.

On her last trip to the hospital, she had no money for taxi fare.

After she died, a will was found among her effects.

In it she left her safe deposit box to the research department of the hospital she had learned to love.

Yesterday, startled officials announced the contents:

Gold, jewelry, cash, stocks, bonds and passbooks to 15 bank accounts, with a total estimated value of $150,000.

How she acquired the fortune remained a mystery. Her employer, or her few acquaintances and relatives were unaware of her wealth.

Said the hospital:

"The humanity she shed from her life benefit greatly from her generous bequest to the fight against one of the most brutal diseases, cancer."

Housing Boom

New York Will Have Biggest Building Program Since Year 1920

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The state will have its greatest housing building boom this year since 1920, State Housing Commissioner Herman T. Stiehmman reported today.

Private housing starts for the first eight months of this year were 56 per cent above the same period of 1949 due to building trying to get started before federal controls limit materials on non-defense building, he said.

The commissioner told of an upsurge in private residential construction in New York city and steady building activity upstate, reversing the usual seasonal decline.

Stiehmman said private home building in August was 48 per cent above the preceding month and 25 per cent above August, 1949. Permits were issued for 5,268 private homes valued at $49,718,400, he said.

New public housing in August was valued at $4,933,000.

The value of all urban building for the first eight months was $490,120,000.

The following urban centers outside New York city showed the largest number of home units authorized through August:

Yonkers, 1,688; White Plains, 795; Valley Stream, 708; Rochester, 681; Syracuse, 662; New Rochelle, 577; Niagara Falls, 577; Buffalo, 571; Irondequoit, 506.

'These Days'
By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE FRENCH INDO-CHINESE

Among the races of Asia, those who constitute French Indo-China are among the oldest and least known. There are the Cambodians, the Annamites, the Tonkinese, the Laos, and the descendants of the basic Khmers from whom some of the others descend. There has been an infiltration of Chinese, Hindus, and Siamese, but they have not formed distinct groups in the population.

The civilization of the Khmers goes back beyond the knowledge of history. The amazing remains of temples and other buildings at Angkor, the capital city of the Khmers, bespeak a culture beyond anything that exists in French Indo-China today. The Khmers, who probably came from India, were a highly artistic people. They reached their height as a nation in the 11th century and by the 14th had practically ceased to exist as a political power.

About 80 per cent of the people of French Indo-China are Annamites who are affiliated to Chinese culture, their country having long been under Chinese control. Most of these people are Buddhists, although there are some Confucians and Christians.

Since the middle of the 19th century, what is called Indo-China came under the Colonial power of France, which did not do much to develop its resources. Because of the closeness of this area to parts of China, France also leased an island from China called Kwangchow and developed a sphere of influence in Yunnan. In fact, a railroad was built by the French connecting Yunnanfu, the capital of that province, with Haiphong, a port in the Gulf of Tonkin.

In the years when I lived in China, this was a route for the illicit trade in opium and arms. Yunnan and Kweichow provinces in China were large producers of illegal opium. Also, the various revolutionary, feudal and bandit groups in China were able to move arms into the country by this means.

The French have never been popular either in French Indo-China or in China. They did very little for the people. As a matter of fact, they did little for themselves, failing adequately to develop the important natural resources of French Indo-China.

During World War II, the Japanese had no trouble taking these areas and holding them. The French simply caved in. After the war was over, the future of French Indo-China became very complicated because of the presence of a powerful Communist organization, headed by Ho Chi-Minh, who had been a member of the Communist apparatus in China in the 1920's. He had been trained in Russia and France, is a man of learning and capacity. He suffers from tuberculosis.

His government is called Viet Minh.

The French have placed at the head of their government, the Emperor Bao Dai, a member of the ruling family, educated in France and in the past not always regarded as a serious person. This government is called Viet Nam and generally follows the governmental structure of France.

The Bao Dai regime is recognized by the United States and was recognized in financial aid. Dean Acheson, on May 8 said concerning this:

"The United States government, convinced that neither national independence nor democratic evolution exist in any area dominated by Soviet imperialism, considers the situation to be such as to warrant its according economic aid and military equipment to the associated states of Indo-China and to France in order to assist them in restoring stability and permitting these states to pursue their peaceful and democratic development."

The Communists have maintained a constant civil war in French Indo-China. By infiltrating Cambodia, they have managed to smuggle arms from Thailand (Siam). This fight is now developing into a war, supported by Soviet China. The Communist movement in this area must be taken seriously because of the unpopularity of the French and of the Bao Dai regime.

On February 1, Dean Acheson said:

"The recognition by the Kremlin of Ho Chi-Minh's Communist movement in Indo-China comes as a surprise. The Soviet acknowledgment of this movement should remove any illusions as to the 'Nationalist' nature of Ho Chi-Minh's aims and reveals Ho in his true colors as the mortal enemy of native independence in Indo-China."

It is difficult to understand why our secretary of state should have been so surprised. After all, the Communist movement in French Indo-China is 30 years old.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—After a month of watching sour-puss Soviet Delegate Malik rant, rave and stymie the U.N. Security Council, the American television-viewing public is getting a great kick out of a gentleman who is exactly the opposite—Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief of the British U.N. delegation and now chairman of the Security Council.

Sir Gladwyn's firmness in putting Malik in his place, his precise, masterful manner and his obvious friendship for the U.S.A. has done more to improve British-American relations than anything since V-E day.

Were it not for television the American public could not have received the same visual proof of Jebb's operation. As a result they rate him along with Joe Di Maggio and Hopalong Cassidy—at least in the New York metropolitan area.

Interesting thing is that this quite sincere tribute is not particularly appreciated by more stuffy British diplomats, nor by some of the British press. Harold Nicholson, for instance, writes in the London Sunday Observer:

"The frenzied publicity which surrounds Lake Success has imposed upon Sir Gladwyn a burden of publicity which is not only avoidable, but he feels sure war would come. But now, he feels the Soviets are not ready, and never will get to the point of readiness so long as the western world continues its rapid movement toward joint defense."

And he seems to be aware that the television cameras play their part in this effort. When the bright lights go up, in the council chamber at Lake Success, Jebb wince inwardly and wonders if some members will now ask to speak who had no intention of speaking.

But outwardly, he shows no sign of displeasure at a medium which is accomplishing what the European powers failed to accomplish in the days of the League of Nations—awakening the American public to its role in international affairs.

As for his being a star of American television, Jebb reacts with a wry smile that, if the debate switched from Korea to Ireland, his popularity might vanish over night.

Now comes Sir Gladwyn, the debonair and popular hero, the man who rescues the U. N. from the clutch of Comrade Malik. No wonder he has become like Hopalong Cassidy or Joe Di Maggio.

Patrician Temper

Sir Gladwyn doesn't seem to mind the so-called circus atmosphere of Lake Success, despite the British press and despite the fact that he was reared as a career diplomat and prefers a life of easy tempo and pleasant indulgence. He likes Italian cooking, French wines, British country conversation, and, for physical exercise, a gentlemanly game of croquet.

The thing that has made him "Jeb" propelled in America, however, is his burning desire to save the United States from Soviet strangulation.

Sir Gladwyn happens to be one of the U. N. founding fathers. In fact, it was Jebb, in a factious moment at Yalta, when the Big Three couldn't agree on a date for the San Francisco conference, who suggested April 25th—and it was agreed.

The reason: April 25th is his birthday.

Born April 25, 1900, Jebb has seen 50 years of tumultuous times, including two world wars. But he doesn't think another is inevitable. He recalls that in the thirties, he felt sure war would come. But now, he feels the Soviets are not ready, and never will get to the point of readiness so long as the western world continues its rapid movement toward joint defense.

And he seems to be aware that the television cameras play their part in this effort. When the bright lights go up, in the council chamber at Lake Success, Jebb wince inwardly and wonders if some members will now ask to speak who had no intention of speaking.

But outwardly, he shows no sign of displeasure at a medium which is accomplishing what the European powers failed to accomplish in the days of the League of Nations—awakening the American public to its role in international affairs.

As for his being a star of American television, Jebb reacts with a wry smile that, if the debate switched from Korea to Ireland, his popularity might vanish over night.

Disapproving Republicans

As the Senate Armed Services Committee listened to Gen. George Marshall answer Sen. William Jenner's questions on his fitness to be secretary of defense, G.O.P. Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon burst in late. Only vacant seat on the Republican side was next to Jenner. Morse looked at the set, then at Jenner. With an obvious look of distaste, he moved on to a vacant seat on the Democratic side.

Later in the hearing, as Senator Jenner plied Marshall with unflinching questions, aristocratic Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, also a Republican, stuttered in protest. Saltonstall's long, lean face was red with anger, his lips turned back by voice shook with indignation.

"I do not know how anyone, in self-respect, can ask these questions," he said.

Nelson Rockefeller is under consideration to be American ambassador to the Vatican.

U. S. Ambassador Louis Douglas has given blunt notice to the British to stop sending huge quantities of tin and rubber to the Russians. The American ambassador to Yugoslavia has called that the Russians are making dangerous progress in their attempts to stir up a revolution against Tito.

A disastrous 40 per cent crop failure is what threatens the hold on Yugoslavia. The U. S. military mission in Iran reports that the Russians now have two full airborne armies with complete battle equipment concentrated on the Iranian border.

Merry-Go-Round

The army handed out shiny, new Enfiles to 671 lieutenant colonels last week. Of these, however, four out of five went to regular army officers—though twice as many reserves were eligible for promotion.

The military is planning to fly 44 per cent of the Korean airlift. These are the same airlines that the Civil Aeronautics Board has been kicking around and squeezing out of business.

Don't breathe a word of this to General MacArthur, but Congressman Dingell, who demanded heer for G.I.s in Korea, is so allergic he can't drink more than one glass of beer himself.

The trial of Lee High Sney of Ellenville on a charge of possession of opium held before Police Justice Benjamin Linstein and a jury of six Monday night, resulted in a disagreement. It was nearly 10 p. m. when the case was given to the jury, following Justice Linstein's charge. They returned within less than half an hour and reported that they took four hours for conviction on two counts of possession of opium. The juror, who reported for the jurors, told the judge that they were unable to agree. The jury was made up of Max Boxer, Floyd Palmer, Peter Heiman, Emma D. Brown, George Hoff and Ben Taylor. The defendant admitted possession of the drug, claiming that it had been used for ulcers of the stomach. His attorney, John Bonum, also admitted that his client had possessed the opium, but stressed his need for it because of the pain he suffered. He compared the defendant's use of opium with the general use of aspirin by others. Only other witnesses for the defense was Dr. Anthony Hager, who against objection testified that the defendant on a date following his "arrest" for stomach ulcers, (Sherwood Davis of Kingston, representing the district attorney's office, placed three witnesses on the stand two federal narcotic agents who conducted the raid here Aug. 3 and a federal chemist who had analyzed the opium seized. It had charge to the jury Judge Linstein emphasized that the defendant was being tried for the possession of opium and that was the only question for the jury to decide. The case has been set down for a retrial Monday, Oct. 9.

UTILIZATION OF '40-PLUS' MEN

Before World War II many men over forty had a hard time finding work. It was the fashion among a lot of employers to rate such "oldsters" as no longer useful. But the war showed the folly of that attitude, for thousands of men well into their sixties performed ably in vital wartime jobs.

Since then management has taken a more sensible and realistic view of the older worker's economic value. Businessmen recognize, too, that men in the upper age brackets are steadily bulking larger in the population. Pension burdens will be heavy enough without the unnecessary added load of men who are perfectly capable of giving good service for years.

All this is healthy. The premature retirement of men able to work usefully for a long time to come is economically wasteful. More than that, it's often ruinous to the individual oldster who feels himself fit to take an active part. So it's a good sign that elderly workers are being given a real place.

Yet, conversely, in some lines oldsters may well be gaining job opportunities that they ought not to have. In a machine civilization, there are, inevitably, tasks which call for speedy physical reactions which only younger men can show.

The recent rail crash that led to death for thirty-three aboard a troop train provides an example. Testimony since the accident has established that the engineer of the fast Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train which struck the troop train was to blame. He ignored a red warning signal. When he did decide to stop, he waited too long before applying his emergency brakes.

The engineer involved is sixty-eight years old. Many might wish to insist his age had nothing to do with the accident; that he simply made a mistake anyone could have made. True, maybe. Still, the last time a similar rail wreck occurred—on the Burlington line—the man responsible was also a sixty-eight-year-old engineer.

How do men of such age get jobs running the nation's fastest trains? Union seniority rules are the answer. They allow the veteran railroader to take his pick of the best jobs available. Operating a star train is in the nature of a reward for long and faithful service.

In the light of this tragic wreck on the Pennsylvania, rail management and unions might find it wise to modify seniority rules to keep ninety-mile-an-hour limiteds in the hands of younger men with faster reaction times.

The basic worth of the seniority system will not be damaged by making a few carefully spotted exceptions. And some lives may be saved.

It was just thirty-six years ago this summer that Austria declared war on Siberia. It's amazing, and painfully so, how a few decades can change the earth's complexion.

Time's galloping gait quickly makes baby sitters out of mothers who used to hire them. But grandparenthood is grand, indeed.

The "people" are again about to find out how important they are—election time is just around the corner.

Frequently it's not the fishing that's poorer, it's just the competition that's better.

One certain last word in an argument: an apology.

AUTOS ON THE CAMPUS

Brown University joins the many colleges limiting the student use of automobiles. Brown now forbids freshmen to own cars if they live in the campus area. The university authorities seem to think that by the time they become sophomores, they will no longer need such restraints. Some outsiders may take leave to doubt this.

Campus restrictions on automobiles may often be as much for the purpose of reducing the number of vehicles cluttering the area as for limiting student movement. But there also is a sound supposition that the

DEATH RATE IN APPENDICITIS REDUCED

Some years ago a cartoonist pictured two trees standing side by side, on one of which the tree surgeon had finished his operation by application of cement. One tree was saying to the other, "Did I tell you about my operation?" The cartoon appeared about the time that operations for removal of the appendix were so common and the conversation at bridge, golf, or other games naturally was about these operations.

We do not hear or read so much these days about operations; such conversations today are usually about blood pressure because heart and brain strokes are in most cases caused by high blood pressure.

I have written before of what was called the Philadelphia experiment in which the physicians, and citizens also, of that city determined to establish a record in reducing the deaths from appendicitis. The efforts to reduce the death rate was so successful that a world's record was established. Three rules were followed: (1) no purgative, (2) no food, (3) early operation. These suggestions are now being followed practically all over the world.

In Archives of Surgery, Chicago, Drs. L. R. Slatery, S. A. Yammitelli and J. W. Hinton, state that during the past ten years there has been a spectacular drop in the death rate of acute appendicitis. There were 14,313 deaths due to appendicitis in the United States in 1939, while in 1946 there were only 5,285. These physicians review 952 cases of acute appendicitis treated in the Fourth Surgical Division of Bellevue Hospital during the 20 year period 1928-1947.

The greatest single factor in reducing the death rate has been the greatest number of patients seen in the early stages of the disease. "Public health education and increased alertness of the medical profession are responsible for much of this improvement." Added to this is that peritonitis which causes so many deaths, is now prevented by the use of the sulfa drugs and penicillin. These drugs kill harmful organisms and prevent complications which may follow operation.

We should all remember the three points: no purgative, no food, and the patient and family consenting to early operation.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject send today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." To obtain it, send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, Inc., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., and ask for your copy.

Ranch Type House

looks out into the pleasant front yard area, and a large clothes closet in the right rear corner, this room can be used with equal success as either a bedroom or a den.

The other two bedrooms make up the projecting ell that adds so much to the overall appeal of the "Dayton." A central hallway connects these two rooms which are separated by a completely modern and good sized bathroom.

Containing two extra large closets the rear bedroom is 11'4"x11'6" and boasts four windows on two sides; these provide plenty of good sunlight and ventilation. Opening off the hall just to the right of the door to this bedroom, is a large linen closet—a feature certain to make a big hit with the lady of the house.

Although the front bedroom is larger, 11'4"x13', it also has four windows, one of which looks out on the front stoop. Two of the windows are located directly opposite each other in the center of the side walls of the room; the fourth window is placed in the center of the front wall looking out to the street.

This room also has an extra large clothes closet with an adjacent linen closet opening off the hallway. Beneath the living room will make the best location for the heating plant; the laundry room beneath the kitchen. This will leave you with plenty of ceiling space to convert into a recreation room or workshop to use for any other purpose you may desire.

Complete plans and specifications for the "Dayton" or any other house in this series are available at moderate cost. To ascertain the exact price of these documents write to the Home Building Editor, "Home of the Week" Plan Service, 89 Elm Grove Avenue, Providence, R. I., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three cent stamp. At least one week should be allowed for a reply.

Measuring only 9'x8' the dining room boasts an ideal location with three windows looking out on the terrace as well as a French door leading out to this same lovely terrace. Naturally, you'll want to put your dining room set where you and your guests can best enjoy the sight of the terrace and garden while relaxing over a leisurely meal. In the warmer weather the terrace will itself make an excellent location for friendly luncheons or more formal dinners.

Through the two kitchen windows you can also enjoy the sight of your backyard garden—a sight that will brighten up that three-times daily dishwashing stint. Located just to the left of the dining room, the kitchen is 12'x8' in dimensions and contains an abundance of working counter, cupboard and cabinet space to help take the work out of your household.

Just under the windows in the rear wall is a splendid place to put the sink, and you'll find that placing the refrigerator at one end of the working counters (against the opposite wall) and the stove at the other end will leave you plenty of convenient working space in-between.

The back hall, reached through a door from the kitchen as well as from the attached garage, gives direct access to the terrace and back yard. A stairway from this hall leads to the full cement cellar.

This back entrance to the garage will be doubly handy in cold or stormy weather. Measuring 20'x11'6", the garage also has a protected front entrance. This is certain to be appreciated by the driver who has to unlock the entrance door in order to get the car into the garage on a wet or drizzly day.

At the left of the living room is a pleasant room of average size, 11'4"x9'. With one window that looked into home accidents cause one death every 16 minutes and the chances are 6 to 4 that this injury will result from a fall.

Of the 3,128,000 disabling home accidents that were caused by falls it is estimated that slippery surfaces accounted for 6 per cent, or 187,000 of these mishaps.

Kitchen Most Dangerous
The kitchen is the most dangerous place in the home with 17.9 per cent of all disabling accidents occurring in that room. Outside steps are where 12.9 per cent of home accidents occur; inside steps, 10 per cent. Even the bedroom is dangerous for 7.1 per cent of all persons injured at home, while the living room accounts for 8.5 per cent of the home accident rate, bathrooms 2.7 per cent, and hallways 2 per cent.

Removing Paint
Sponge paint stains on glass with hot water in which a little oxalic acid has been dissolved.

Questions, Answers

Finish Floor
Q. We have two rooms which have new hardwood floors. I believe they used the 3/4-inch thick variety. In several places this floor has raised and makes quite a lot of noise when walked on. Could I fix these places by nailing down?

A. Hardwood floors that are loose and squeaking can usually be fixed by nailing them down. It is not to be confused with the nails should be counter sunk for nailing. An alternate scheme involves removal and relaying of the floor.

Visitor—How does the land lie in this way?
Native—It ain't the land that lies; it's the real estate agents.

First girl—I don't see how you could engage yourself to that old man. He hasn't a tooth in his head and is pretty near bald.

Second Girl—Well, my dear, you shouldn't be too severe on him; he was born that way.

Man is but a worm. He comes along, wiggles a bit, then some chicken gets him.

The druggist danced and chorled till the bottles danced on the shelves.

Soda Clerk—What's up? Have you been taking something?

Druggist—No But you remember when our water pipes were frozen last Christmas?

Soda Clerk—Yes, but what?

Druggist—Well, the plumber who fixed them has just come to have a prescription filled.

The Freedom Crusade

Fall in line and join the parade of the nationwide truth crusade. To fight for freedom all the way. Be fair and square is their slogan today.

"Honesty is the best policy. Always practice and you will see a safer and better world for all. Never must freedom ever fall.

To safeguard the future generation. Uplift the morals of the nation. Just be yourself a true Yankee. Make the foundation ever free.

Truth we know never is hidden. Secrecy is best to be forbidden. Always have matters out in the open. How very unpleasant to always be groping.

Relly together and fight for truth. You will find how conditions grow smooth.

The Freedom Crusade starts its sound to see if permanent truth can be found.

Total Eclipse Set For Monday Night

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—The moon will go into a total eclipse next Monday night—probably looking like a coppery-red ball.

The reason is this: Although the moon is actually in the earth's shadow at a time of total eclipse, certain rays from the sun are "bent" by the earth's atmosphere so that ordinarily they illuminate the moon to some extent.

However, if cloud conditions are just right, these rays will not sneak by the earth. In that case the moon will be totally blacked out. Such a phenomenon occurred in a lunar eclipse not long ago.

Monday night's eclipse of the "harvest moon" starting at 8:20 p. m. (E.S.T.) will be visible throughout all of North America.

Totality begins at 10:54 p. m., ends at 11:40.

Youth Hurt Friday Leaving School Bus

James Comforti, 6, was injured Friday afternoon shortly after he had alighted from a school bus three miles west of Highland on Highway 44-55. Comforti alighted from the bus and according to an investigation made by state troopers, from Highland, state across the highway and stepped in front of a Chevrolet coupe operated by Janson Osterhoudt, 35, of Accord which was proceeding in an opposite direction from the DuBois school bus. Harry Manville of Highland was operator of the bus.

Comforti received a laceration of the scalp and a possible fracture of the skull, he was taken to Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, by Dr. Charles E. Niles of the Hudson River State Hospital, Poughkeepsie, who stopped at the scene.

Martha Raye Charged With Drunken Driving

Boston, Sept. 23 (AP)—Martha Raye, singing comedienne of stage and screen, spent nearly five hours in the House of Detention early today after being charged with drunkenness and driving while under the influence of liquor.

Her husband, Nick Condor, arrested with her on drunkenness charges, was never let out of the jail. She was freed in $225 bail.

Patrolman Thomas O'Malley, Jr., said a big automobile driven by Miss Raye went on the sidewalk at Cross street in the north end.

O'Malley quoted the songstress as saying the sidewalk was wider when she came from. She is appearing in a Boston nightclub.

Three Are Cited

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Senate has urged that former Communist Leader Earl Browder, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Philip Jaffe be prosecuted for contempt of Congress. The citations, stemming from the Senate investigation of Communists in government charges made by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.), were approved yesterday. They go now to the U. S. district attorney who decides whether to prosecute.

Will Back Korea GI's

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The head of the left-wing United Electrical Workers (Ind.) says the union will back Korea GI's who are being held in the United States. The union, which is a part of the Communist Party, has been accused of government charges made by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.), were approved yesterday. They go now to the U. S. district attorney who decides whether to prosecute.

Agree on Wage Boost

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—A P.L. longshoremen and New York shippers tentatively agreed yesterday to a wage raise of 12 cents an hour. The term may set a pattern in every port from Maine to Virginia. Since other east coast shippers usually follow the New York wage pattern. About 45,000 longshoremen work the east coast.

Longshoremen Balk

Port Arthur, Tex., Sept. 23 (AP)—The Swedish freighter Solma Thorden is still carrying a quantity of liquor. Longshoremen at Camden, N. J., refused to handle it. The ship called here to take on a cargo of coke. Its agents said they didn't know what they'd do about the liquor.

Herman Lenker gathered his family about him two days ago and told them he was going to die. He then gave instructions for his funeral, fixing the date and time. He is survived by a son and two daughters.

17 Billion Dollar

Europe more than it would Russia.

The House refused to approve the amendment and toned it down to give discretion to the matter to the National Security Council, headed by Mr. Truman.

Senator Wherry (R-Nebr.), author of the original amendment, tried unsuccessfully to rewrite the House compromise by substituting for it a modified version of his own plan.

The Senate turned him down by a vote of 38 to 28 and sent the bill to the President by voice vote.

The emergency measure, hurriedly written after the Communist invasion of South Korea, provides an estimated $11,000,000,000 for the army, the navy and the air force to build up the nation's war potential, and $4,000,000,000 for military aid to foreign countries outside the Soviet orbit.

There are smaller sums for the Atomic Energy Commission and for stockpiling strategic materials that would be vital in the event of war.

Allied Marines

such a penetration. Aerial observers previously had reported U. S. Marines inside the Korean capital city but later checks showed them 500 yards from the city limit.

"United Nations forces north of the Han river are in the outskirts of Seoul," MacArthur reported at 3:35 p. m. (1:35 a. m., E.S.T.) without elaboration as to whether they were U. S. or South Korean marines.

While these forces inched forward, U. S. infantrymen driving south from the city and north toward it from the old Pusan beachhead fought within 85 air miles of each other.

Tanked U. S. First Cavalry Division soldiers made the most spectacular gain—35 miles in 35 hours. They raced through disintegrating Red defenses at the northwest end of the Pusan perimeter. Their advanced position was 85 air miles southeast of U. S. Seventh Division troops who captured Suwon and its big airfield, about 20 miles south of Seoul.

Face Threat of Trap

Thousands of Red troops in the southeast sector faced the threat of being trapped by the swift dash. Five thousand already were cut off. Low-flying planes went after them today in good weather, seeking to add to a kill of more than 1,100 Friday.

MacArthur's summary, covering 24-hour operations up to Friday midnight, said U. N. forces on all fronts inflicted 5,920 Red casualties and captured 685.

The general's plan to catch the Reds between forces at Seoul and the southeast beachhead, then break them apart as a fighting unit was beginning to bear fruit.

Saturday's Far East Air Force summary said planes along the Pusan beachhead lines "assisted ground elements . . . to such an extent that mass ground force advances were possible for the first time in the Korean conflict."

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding the U. S. First Cavalry Division, called the situation in front of his men "a rout."

Other U. N. forces along the southeast perimeter rolled forward for advances up to 12 miles.

The First Cavalry task force began its 35 mile dash near Tabu, 13 miles north of Taegu. A division spokesman told A.P. Correspondent Hal Boyle that the force today entered Sangju, a highway point, after crossing the Nakdong river. A.P. Correspondent Jack MacBeth said he flew over the area today, witnessed the crossing and saw Sangju in flames but could not confirm entry into the town.

Sangju is astride a highway up which the Reds might have sent troops toward Seoul. It also is across another highway leading north from Kumcheon where the Reds were fighting to hold off U. S. 24th Division troops.

Other notable advances in southeast Korea, in addition to the First Cavalry's 35-mile dash included:

South Korean troops entered Ulsong, a highway point 35 miles north of Taegu, and a highway point 35 miles north of Taegu, and a highway point 35 miles north of Taegu.

South Korean fighting up the east coast from the recaptured port of Pohang were near Chongha, more than 10 miles away.

U. S. 25th Division troops at the south end of the battle perimeter gained two to three and one-half miles but Red resistance still was stubborn. The 25th troops are near Chingju, 28 miles west of Masan. It was from positions eight miles northwest of Masan that the infantrymen jumped off Sept. 16.

Red resistance stalled the British 27th Brigade southwest of Taegu.

A.P. Photographer Gene Herick said he saw U. S. air force planes bomb and strafe British troops by mistake. He said jellied gasoline bombs were dropped and that the British casualties apparently were heavy.

Soviet Policy Due to keep silent for the time being on the Formosa issue. He told the Assembly Steering Committee at an agenda meeting yesterday that he is waiting for new instructions from his government and obtained a delay on the United States request to put Formosa on the agenda.

Both Nationalist China and Communist China take the attitude that Formosa belongs to China. The United States wants to have the U. N. decide who shall control the island where the Nationalist government now operates.

(D-Nav.), principal sponsor of the bill, objected.

Douglas suggested that the Senate take a breathing spell while the people had a chance to read the President's veto message during the day.

"We might well reach a wiser decision after the people have received the veto message," Douglas said.

When McCarran objected Douglas launched a speech against the bill.

The weariness and tension of the Senate was pointed up when Douglas sobbed audibly as he concluded a 1 1/2-hour plea that the Senate take time to think before voting to override the veto.

Douglas had been making a detailed argument against the bill. Suddenly his voice broke and he had difficulty in finishing.

Fatally and struggling to keep control, Douglas told his colleagues:

"In such imperfect wisdom as I have I will vote to uphold the President's veto."

Then he sat down wearily, talked for a moment to an aide and walked from the chamber.

Senator Murray (D-Mont.) took over the floor now to speak against the bill. Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) asked him how long he intended to talk and "when may we expect a vote?"

Murray said he planned to speak about an hour, but that "there may be several others" to follow. He said he could not predict when the Senate would vote.

Murray advanced the argument that the bill is unconstitutional and unworkable.

He was followed on the floor by Senator Lehman (D-Lib.-N. Y.) who said opponents of the measure felt that members should be given time to study the President's veto message carefully.

Lehman started speaking at 7:40 a. m. (E.S.T.).

"There is no disposition," he said, "to unreasonably or unnecessarily delay or postpone a vote on the veto beyond a reasonable time this afternoon."

In announcing that he intended to vote to override the veto, Lucas said he disliked going against the President but felt compelled to do so. He spoke to a hushed chamber shortly after Langer collapsed.

"The American people are anxious to have an anti-Communist bill placed on the statute books," Lucas said.

Lucas himself helped to write into the measure one of its major provisions, that calling for internment of dangerous Reds in time of war, invasion or insurrection. Another provision calls for registration of Communist organizations and fronts with the Department of Justice.

Lucas appealed to opponents of the bill not to continue what he called their filibuster, saying that senators were entitled to vote.

All during his long speech on the bill Langer had been first belittling, then chatting amiably. He discussed not only the bill but a dozen other topics.

He is a husky six-footer with a powerful voice, noted for his desk-thumping speeches.

Langer's collapse came
